The inaugural volume of Topics in Address Research, a series that aims to reflect that growing interest. The volume includes an overview, followed by seventeen chapters organized in five sections covering new methodological advances in anthropology in the Spanish-speaking world. Additionally, it will serve as an indispensable guide to students, both at the undergraduate and graduate level, investigating sociohistorical advances in Spanish worldwide. Recognizing the inherent intersectionality of social and historical factors, the book’s eight chapters investigate phenomena ranging from forms of address and personal(ized) infinitives to clitics and sibilant systems.

A Critical Examination Of Linguistic Variation In Golden Spanish

This volume is devoted to a major chapter in the history of linguistics in the United States, the period from the 1930s to the 1980s, and focuses primarily on the American linguistics in transition. The book is aimed at illuminating the intellectual and methodological changes that took place in the period by bringing together contributions from original research, historical scholarship, and critical reflection on the period.

The Making of American Linguistics in Transition

This handbook provides substantive definitions of critical literacies across fields and geographies, surveys of critical literacy work in over 23 countries and regions, and overviews of research, practice, and conceptual connections to emerging and emerging theoretical frameworks. The chapters on global critical literacy research on language acquisition, the teaching of literacy and English language arts, and sociocultural practices, are particularly noteworthy. The handbook’s broad scope and interdisciplinary approach will make it an invaluable resource for scholars and practitioners alike.
