Formalising Natural Languages with NooJ 2013 Dvetka Kova 2014-06-02 This volume contains 17 articles, developed from papers that were chosen from among the 44 presentations of work on NooJ presented at the 2013 International NooJ Conference in Saarbrücken in June, 2013. NooJ is a linguistic development environment that allows linguists to formalize a wide range of linguistic phenomena, and then test, adapt, share and accumulate each elementary description to build linguistic "modules", that is, structured libraries of linguistic resources. NooJ is also used as a corpus processor that can launch sophisticated queries over large corpora of texts, in order to produce various results, including concordances, statistical analyses, information extraction, and automatic translation. NooJ is used in many research centers; it has recently been endorsed by the European Metahub (CEZAR project, and is now available as an open source software at the METASHARE repository. NooJ is also used by a growing number of software companies to construct various Natural Language Processing applications.

Paul Celan Hugo Becker 2008-01-01 Paul Celan: Studies in his Early Poetry scrutinizes the influences detectable in the poems written during 1938-48. Among German writers, Büchner, Goethe, Gottfried von Strassburg, Gryphius, Mörike, the poet of the Nibelungenlied, Hoefnagel, Rilke, and Trakl all provided motifs that, often repeated, make for a dense network inviting attention to the self-referential and self-revealing patterns in Celan's early work. In addition, there are many poems that contain motifs gleaned from Greek mythology and/or biblical data. These references, on occasion quite clear, are often so obscure as to be easy illusions, yield the view that during his first decade of poetic activities, Celan becomes increasingly recondite. When these references or allusions stand side-by-side in a given poem, they acquire a surrealistic tint and threaten to withhold clear meaning. Ambiguities, deliberately cultivated in the earliest poems, begin to boom and read like so many preludes to the struggles with language evident in the poetry of Celan's maturity. It is a certainty that Celan reacted quickly, if not immediately, to the events befalling the scenes of his early years [Czechowsky and the forced-labor camp]. This phenomenon mandates the view of his poems as so many pieces of autobiography. Thus it is inevitable that as early as 1940 he wrote against the backdrop of war, and soon thereafter in the shadow of the camp, his poetry began to serve as a vehicle for the expression of the poet's identity. The form and organization of the poems written during 1938-48 in Celan, close reading of modern poetry in general, comparative literature, motif studies, poetic reactions to Holocaust events, as seen in a few examples regarding the role of the deity in the destruction of those for whom the poet speaks.
