Islam and Contemporary Civilisation Halim Rane 2010 Islam and Contemporary Civilisation examines the most complex debates and challenges facing Islam internally and externally today. A comprehensive study, Rane provides a concise and comprehensive introduction to Islam and modern developments in Muslim thought, and tackles questions of Islamic law, human rights, democracy, Jihad and the Israel-Palestine conflict in the context of Islam-West relations.

Stowasser establishes the link between the female figure as cultural history. By telling their stories in Qur'an and interpretation, she introduces Islamic doctrine and its past and present socio-economic and political applications. Stowasser fills the void with this study on the women of Islamic sacred texts, which tend precisely to engagement with those of other faiths. As such Islam has much to add to the debate on Religious Pluralism. For Muslims the issue is a delicate one. Aside from being tolerant and respectful of other faiths, advocates freedom of faith, and peaceful coexistence. Muslims have to add to their own religious tradition.

Socio-Economic and Political Applications of Islamic Finance Combining academic and industry experience, Lum unpacks the relationship of Islamic finance with Muslim identity and challenges the perceived limitations of Islamic finance products. The book draws our attention to a remarkable overlap between some of the complexities associated with structuring Islamic finance products that are not only Sharia compliant but also competitive in a non-Muslim jurisdiction. Using Sukūk bonds as a case study, he highlights the tangible and non-tangible barriers to product development, such as tax and regulatory requirements and the rise of Islamophobia.

A Thematic Commentary on the Qur’an Muhammad Ghazali 2000 In a multi-faith world, Islam is widely regarded as dogmatic and closed. In this study, written from a progressive perspective, combining the Quranic verses with relevant Islamic teachings, the Qur’an is shown to be a progressive, intellectually engage on matters of religious truth whilst defending the validity of their own Islamic tenets. This study is focused on the Qur’anic text. It explores the Qur’anic conception of normative religious pluralism with a view to providing answers to questions such as whether the Qur’an itself regards religious pluralism as a value system or simply a method through which the Qur’anic world view can be actualized. In so doing the author corrects some highly controversial misquotation, mistranslation, and/or quoted out of context verses of the Qur’an, including the so-called verse of the sword and the perception of not taking non-Muslims as friends. In reality, the Qur’an calls for freedom of faith and peaceful coexistence, but condemns oppression, religious persecution, and those who initiate hostilities.

Approaching the Qur’ān 2007 ‘Approaching the Qur’ān captures the complexity, power, and poetry of the early suras, or chapters, of the Qur’ān, the sacred scripture of Islam. Michael Sells presents brilliant translations of the short, hymnic verses that tell the stories of Prophet Muhammad’s life and his early companions. This new translation and commentary on the Sura of the Compassionate (al-Rahmān), which holds a special place within Islamic devotion and literature, additionally, a new preface addresses the ongoing controversy over teaching about Islam and the Qur’ān in American schools.

actually nothing wrong with Islam even though many of its followers and nations are besieged with woeful conditions and circumstances. Muslims are simply not able to make the heroic efforts required for survival and their ultimate liberation. They do it on their own, as they have done in the past, and have been inspired by the Qur’anic guidance, by continuing the struggle in the face of adversity, by maintaining the faith of their ancestors, and by upholding the principles of justice, equality, and peace.

Islamic Banking and Interest

The black market for Islamic banking and interest is not a problem in Islam. Indeed, the Qur’an and the Hadith do not prohibit it. However, the Islamic banking and interest systems are quite different from the modern banking and interest systems. Islamic banking is based on the principles of justice, cooperation, and mutual benefit. Interest, on the other hand, is based on the principle of individual gain at the expense of others. Islamic banking is not a substitute for conventional banking, but it is an alternative to it. It is not a panacea for all economic problems, but it can be used to address some problems. Islamic banking can be used to promote economic growth, reduce poverty, and improve the quality of life. It can also be used to promote social justice, by providing access to financial services to the poor and the marginalized.

has tafsir been influenced by differing theological traditions (classical, mystical sufi, persian), political and sectarian interests etc. and how interpretation has differed in some cases, mainly pertaining to juridical, theological, historical, and linguistic issues. Certain scholars and Qur'anic commentaries have stood the test of time and stand in greater prominence to others. Their works are introduced, and different methodologies compared and critiqued. What we are left with is a broad yet important overview of a subject which otherwise can be too complex and extensive for the ordinary reader to grasp acting as a valuable addition to his/her understanding and study of the Qur'anic text.

Contemporary Approaches to the Qur'an and Its Interpretation in Iran Ali Akbar 2021-07-02 This book sets out how contemporary Iranian scholars have approached the Qur'an during recent decades. It particularly aims to explore the contributions of scholars that have emerged in the post-1979-revolution era, outlining their primary interpretive methods and foundational theories regarding the reading of the Qur'an. Examining issues such as the status of women, democracy, freedom of religion and human rights, this book analyses the theoretical contributions of several Iranian scholars, some of which are new to the English-speaking academy. The hermeneutical approaches of figures such as Abdolkarim Soroush, Muhammed Mojtabah Shabestari, Mohsen Kadihar, Hasan Yussefi-Eshkevari, Abolqasem Fateh and Mustafa Malekian are presented and then analysed to demonstrate how a contextualist approach to the Qur'an has been formed in response to the influence of Western Orientalism. The effect of this approach to the Qur'an is then shown to have wide-ranging effects on Iranian society. This study reveals Qur'anic thought that has been largely overlooked by the West. It, therefore, Be of great use to academics in Religious, Islamic and Qur'anic studies as well as those studying the culture of Iran and the Middle East more generally.

Let there be no Compulsion in Religion (Sura 2:256) Christine Schirrmacher 2016-02-04 In Christine Schirrmacher’s postdoctoral thesis, for the first time one finds reviews of original voices coming from Islamic theology on the topic of religious freedom and apostasy. Arabic, English, French, and Urdu texts have been translated and analyzed and thus made accessible. There are basically three positions which are defended on falling away from the Islamic faith: Complete advocacy of religious freedom, the complete denial of religious freedom with a call for the immediate application of the death penalty for apostates, and the centrist position. The centrist position, however, which allows inner freedom of thought and warns against premature persecution, calls for the death penalty in the case of open apostasy (e.g., in the case of conversion to another faith). Within established Islamic theology, the latter approach is nowadays the most frequent point of view found. These three main positions on apostasy are introduced in this postdoctoral thesis by means of the publications of three influential 20th century theologians: Yusuf al-Baradawi (b. 1926), Abdullah Saeed (b. 1960), and Abu l-A’la Maududi (1903-1979). They all have followings of many millions of Muslims and have political influence at their disposal. The study explains why in many Muslim majority countries there is still today only very limited or sometimes no freedom of religion (in the sense of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights adopted by the United Nations in 1948) for converts, critical intellectuals, artists and progressive Quran researchers, specialists, journalists and secularists, agnostics and confessing atheists, enlightened thinkers, women’s rights and human rights activists as well as adherents of non-recognized minorities.

Discovering the Qur'an Neal Robinson 2003 Neal Robinson’s Discovering the Qur’an has now become a standard text-book, since it is an excellent resource for those who require a clear and accessible introductory text. It offers a clear interpretation of many aspects of the Qur’an, and is in three parts. The first explores how the book is experienced by Muslims in the context of faith; the second considers chronology, and dates of composition; and the third discusses the structure and coherence of the Qur’an. This new impression includes a new preface by the author. A crucial resource for all students of Islam. ‘If anyone asked me to recommend a clear and comprehensive introduction to the nature and role of the Qur’an, I would look no further ... ‘Professor Oliver Leaman, University of Kentucky in Expository Times ‘... an intelligent, sophisticated and provocative book on a perplexing subject.’ Dr Martin Forward, Wesley House, Cambridge in The Epworth Review

The Oxford Handbook of Qur’anic Studies Mustafa Shah 2020-04-28 The Qur’an is the foundational sacred text of the Islamic faith. Traditionally revered as the literal word of God, its pronouncements and discussions form the bedrock of Islamic beliefs and teachings. Notwithstanding its religious pre-eminence and the fact that it is the sacred text for over one billion of the world’s Muslims, the Qur’an is also considered to be the matchless masterpiece of the Arabic language. Its historical impact as a text can be discerned in all aspects of the heritage of the Arabic literary tradition. Over recent decades, academic engagement with the Qur’an has produced an impressive array of scholarship, ranging from detailed studies of the text’s unique language, style and structure, to meticulous surveys of its contents, concepts and historical contexts. The Oxford Handbook of Qur’anic Studies is an essential reference and starting point for those with an academic interest in the Qur’an. It offers not only detailed reviews of influential subjects in the field, but also a critical overview of developments in the research discourse. It explores the tradition of Qur’anic exegesis and hermeneutics, making it a comprehensive academic resource for the study of the Qur’an. No single volume devoted to such a broad academic survey of the state of the field currently exists.

Islamic Legal Theory Rashid A. Baderin 2017-03-02 Islamic legal theory (usūl al-fiqh) is literally regarded as ‘the roots of the law’ whilst Islamic jurists consider it to be the basis of Islamic jurisprudence and thus an essential aspect of Islamic law. This volume addresses the sources, methods and principles of Islamic law leading to an appreciation of the skills of independent juristic and legal reasoning necessary for deriving specific rulings from the established sources of the law. The articles engage critically with relevant traditional views to enable a diagnostic understanding of different problems, covering both Sunni and Shi‘i perspectives on some of the issues for comparison. The volume features an introductory overview of the subject as well as a comprehensive bibliography to aid further research. Islamic legal theory is a complex subject which challenges the ingenuity of any expert and therefore special care has been taken to select articles for their clarity as well as their quality, variety and critique to ensure an in-depth, engaging and easy understanding of what is normally a highly theoretical subject.
